

Contents

Editorial

- Contributions to the post-World War II History of High-Speed Ground
Transport in the United States 3
James Cohen

Research Papers

- Private agendas and the public good: The contested development of high-speed passenger rail transport in the United States 11
Albert J. Churella
- Moonshots to Nowhere? The Metroliner and Failed High-Speed Rail in the United States, 1962–1977 33
David Reinecke
- High-speed rail and barriers to innovation: The Budd Company and the limits of US indirect industrial policy in the 1960s and 1970s 54
Jonathan Michael Feldman
- Development of a futuristic technology programme: How the aerospace industry
(almost) transformed ground transportation in the United States (1960–1972) 82
James K Cohen
- Getting Off Track: the Northeast Corridor Improvement Project in an International Context 107
Jonathan English
- Negotiating Mobility: Royal Dockyard Workers as Railway Excursion Agents and Social Entrepreneurs, 1880–1918 131
Melanie Bassett

- Book Reviews 152